“When one door of happiness closes, another opens; but often we look so long at the closed door that we do not see the one which has been opened for us” – Helen Keller

Yaron Spektor is a Lecturer, Group Facilitator and Coach, specializing in leading and supporting Transition Processes in life and at work.

Yaron heads a community of 12,000 participants where he teaches how to employ and develop resilience in order to lead, thrive and inspire during times of change. He is a certified Group Facilitator and holds an INSEAD coaching certificate (ICC).

Yaron is best known for blending his scientific and theoretical knowledge with practical experience to help leaders become more focused, effective, and developed on a personal and professional level. With his clear insight and calm demeanor Yaron helps career professionals connect to and bring out their best possible selves.

Yaron graduated his B.Sc. and M.Sc. cum laude in IT at the Technion institute of Technology, and in his previous career worked as an IT Project Manager.

In 2009 he made a career transition and became a Facilitator, Coach and Mentor. He initiates and organizes annual Fundraiser conferences called “Making a Difference”, hosting talks and interview from more than 30 world renowned mentors to over 9000 participants. Each conference raises donations for an organization with a social mission.

When Yaron is not busy teaching and coaching you will find him practicing Yoga, preparing for his next marathon, or enjoying time with his family playing board games and watching Star Wars movies.
